ONE NOTEWORTHY POINT.

The work of the Hammond typewriter is admittedly the neatest and most accurate. The rebound of the keys exceis the speed of the fleetest operator, hence no oluris or double letters. The impression is always uniform—no matter how heavy or faint the touch. The Hammond is fast being adopted by all reperts. Have You one! If not, call and look it over.

that the finest tailoring establishment south of Philadelphia is growing up on this corner? It is so. One of the resolutions for 1882 was to do double the tusiness done in '91. Of course we need your help. The way to get it is to deserve it, and that we intend to do.

First came that line of undressed worsted trouserings at from 25 to 33% per cent less regular prices.

Next came that line of $\mathbb{G}$$ trouserings, which we are making up for $\mathbb{G}$.

Now comes a superbline of imported English suitings. Not one pattern of which can be made up by any first-class tailor in this city under $\mathbb{G}$$ and $\mathbb{G}$$$ We have concluded to make them up for $4.6. If you are a judge of quality you will instantly recognize their great intrinsic value. If not, look about and make comparisons. We'll abids.

An Iowa bank cashier says: "My observation and experience for the past 25 years convince me that, all things considered, Debenture Bonds of responsible loan and trust companies, secured by first mortgages on productive real estate, are among the best securities offered in The president of one of the largest reaper and mower manufacturies in this country also says: "I have never yet found any investment that was permanently good that would yield an income that was not small. Five and 3 per cent Debenture Bonds of responsible loan and trust companies are good enough for me."

Judicious investments have made poor men rich, and bad investments have made rich men The Debenture Bonds issued by this company

SPEAKER CRISP'S CONDITION. Duties for Two Weeks.

The House effected a temporary organization today by the election of Mr. McMillin as Speaker pro tem. until Speaker Crisp shall be able to resume his duties. This organization will probably continue for two weeks and the busprobably continue for two weeks and the business of the house will be proceeded with. There has been considerable anxiety for the Speaker, the fact that he was not permitted to see any one being interpreted as an indication of severe illness. Dr. Walsh made a statement today of just what his patient's condition is and has been that anxiety might be allayed, and at the same time that the members of the House might understand the necessity for the Speaker's absence from his place in the House.

The doctor says that the Speaker was quitted ill with the grip for some time before he took to his bed. His desire to complete the preparation of the committees kept him at work to the estrick and he has had the grip in a very severe form. He has escaped the complications which often accompany the disease, which has taken its usual course. He is now greatly improved, though still quite weak, and is getting better steadily. In two or three days he will be able to sit up. The doctor says, however, that it would not be safe for him to expect himself to the weather for two weeks.

Six Men Who Risked Their Lives to Save Another.

SIX HEROES OF THE SEA.

The Tale of Suffering Told by a Rescuing Liverpoor, Jan. 5 .- A boat's crew composed of six men belonging to the British steamship Eleanor arrived here this morning in a half frozen condition. The sailors tell a tale of much suffering, from which experience several of them will be permanently injured. From the stories told by the mariners referred to it appears that one of the passengers of the Eleanor, who had been acting in a strange manner all the time he had been on board the vessel, suddenly jumped overboard on Sunday, while the steamer was going at full speed. The Eleanor, at that time, was off Greenore light, County Louth, Ireland, but far out at sea. In running; the weather was bitterly cold. In spite of these facts the captain of the steamship stopped and then reversed his engines and ordered a boat to be got ready for launching. He also called for a volunteer crew and burned bine lights while the boat was being swung overboard and lowered away.

A crew of six volunteers slid down the falls A crew of six volunteers slid down the falls the moment the small craft was ready for them and, with the steamer still burning colored fare lights, the rescuers disappeared in the darkness, pulling with all their strength in the direction in which the drowning man was sup-posed to be. Under the influence of wind, sea and a strong current the boat was seen so far away from the steamer that her lights could not be seen. The gallant seamen, however, continued their search for the passenger who had jumped overboard.

When the first alarm of "man overboard" had been given on board the Eleanor a life buoy had been thrown overboard from the steamer and after an hour of fruitless search the men in the Eicanor's boat found this buoy and, clutching it fiercely in his death agony, was the unfortunate passenger. He died be-fore he could be pulled into the boat. AT SEA IN AN OPEN BOAT.

The six rescuers then turned their attention to their own safety and anxiously scanned the horizon in search of the steamer's light or of Page 2

Pa for help without avail, and at last they realized the fact that the Eleanor had abandoned them and that their chances of ever putting their foot ashore again were very slim, indeed. The boat was half full of water, and it required the combined strength of the six men forming her crew to keep her half bows on to the sea. To make matters worse, a drenching downfall of rain swept over them, still further adding to rain swept over them, still further adding to their misery.

Some of the men were so exhausted that they could hardly grasp their oars, while their feet were so cold that they appeared to be turned to ice. There was nothing to eat or drink in the boat and in this manner the men and boat wearily throughout the night. Three or four times during that period the sailors gave up in despair and proposed to lie down in recognized Prudencio de Murquiondo as consul general of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay in the United States.

The Cabinet.—The cabinet meeting today was attended by all the members except Secretaries Blaine and Elkins. The latter is out of town, but is expected to arrive here this afternoon.

Indians Rescued.—The Treasury Department is advised that the revenue cutter Wolcott on the continued the battle against coid and wave.

LAND SIGHTED IN THE MORNING. When morning dawned they could see in the distance a long low line of black, and, pulling toward it with renewed vigor, they were overjoyed to see that they were approaching land. CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.—The regular semi-annual examination for clerks and carriers for the city post office will be held at the rooms of the civil service commission Tuesday, February 2. It is necessary for those applying for examination to do so twenty days prior to that date.

Some hours later, at 10 in the morning, the Eleanor's sailors, so weak and exhausted that they are bad the regular their boat ashore at Greenore and were soon being tenderly cared for by the coastguardsmen. It was soon seen that the rescued men were badly frostbitten and that several of them would at least lose fingers and toes before they recovered from their night's experience.

So soon as possible they were forwarded to Liverpool.

The Eleanor had in the meantime reached department of the Columbia, on the retired list on account of age. It is expected that a brigadier general to succeed him will be appointed by the President in a few days. In the meantime Maj. Gen. Schofield will exercise teamship for having so hastily concluded that the six seamen were lost. He says that be indignation is expressed against the captain of the steamship for having so hastily concluded that the six seamen were lost. He says that he cruised about for two hours in the vicinity of the spot.

The injured seamen propose to bring suits for damages against the captain and the owners of the vessel. of the vessel.

They say that it is impossible for the Eleanor to have cruised two hours about the spot where her commander should have known they were to be found without actually finding them.

of the Nez Perces Indians, his nephew, Young Chief Long Hair, a Umatilia Indian, and Moses Minthorn, an educated Christian Indian, accompanied by agent Crawford of the Umatilla reservation in eastern Oregon, are expected to leave for Chicago and Washington today.
